At the theme park, the Golden Gates distract the joy-boys from the black boot overhead. Replicas and items salvaged from the fires in Europe stud the hubbub and maintain the rushes in the New World.
Adrenaline substitutes for the ongoing once-in-a-lifetime experience.
The walking museum pieces from England who fail at Hollywood practice composition at Happier Hunting Ground.
Loved ones slip into the prescribed rites
for having the hots at Whispering Glades:
The inexpensive organs break and burn.
But a swell-drawn smile replaces the cheek to cheek endurance.
At Abercrombie and Filch, the crematorium seduces all animals with or without inner or outer resources or roots.
