Dušan Gojkov

sadly packing winter clothes in the closet trying to remember where has she lost the past year which was the first and last for many things he leaning against the bed writes meaningless pathetic verses which do not even rhyme but actually trying to remember how and where the heck did he lose the past year he comes closer to the window it's spring time the street is dark and there is no more light, golden and grainy, from the wooden pole that light that smells of fresh warm bread and of winter do you remember that some time ago we planned to travel to paris and we still haven't gone together you say your coffee is getting cold it's good to write poetry you always have at hand a little piece of paper on which you can put the seeds from the cherry dumplings
