“Dreams are not those which comes while you are sleeping

But Dreams are those when you don't sleep before fulfilling them”

(Dr APJ Abdul Kalam)

When a person is wholly and solely after his dream, then it is palpable and apparent that he has to see many hardship to fulfil them, the hardships which the dreamer undergoes carry no weightage and thus are no fear-provoking entities at all for him, nor are they the things which can put him down or turn him off to make him eunuch; as the factual dreamer knows dreaming isn't the work of an ordinary man, although, an ordinary man also dreams but the difference is—an ordinary dreamer dreams while sleeping, but the realistic dreamer dreams while making every effort to fulfil them.

In 2016, I watched a movie, titled, ‘M.S Dhoni—the untold story’, which uncovered many leaves and made overtly apparent before whole world that prior to enjoying the status and stature of Indian captaincy what not ‘Mr Captain Cool’ had to undergo. A son of an ordinary mechanic, a ticket-collector, a meek player who made his debut in 2004 and then the captain who lifted the 1st world twenty20 cup in 2007. With which it became then ostensive that the life of the man (M.S Dhoni) which every solo soul of this country claims as sheer luck and godsend was not that but was built brick by brick with commitment and hard work.

An American transcendentalist, Ralf Waldo Emerson says, “To be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment.”

On 6th December, 2017, a book was released which was titled, “Wandering for Love”, the book (Wandering for Love) is written by a young Kashmiri lad namely ‘Faheen Bhat’ who is just 19 years old. The book deals with so many issues from love to creed and from books to schizophrenia.

The scene and the characters of the book are taken from the west. The scenes in the book start from the Harvard University—where the protagonist studies literature and is the student of final year. Eccentrically by skirmish the protagonist namely Fenin, falls in love which people call as love at first sight with ‘Arabela’ who turns to be a doctor by profession and an aspirer who aspires to open her own hospital for charity. Both Fenin and Arabela share their aspirations, tastes and their goals and start meeting each other repeatedly.

Arabela, helps Fenin during his accident which meets with—Making Fenin believe that she is in love with him, which otherwise stand topsy-turvy.

On the birth day of Fenin's mother, Fenin proposes Arabela and tries to woo her but Arabela turns Fenin's proposal down, which make Fenin to land in the cabin of psychoanalyst.

His family and friends try a lot to make him come out of that cocoon but either of them funk or turn unproductive to get him back to normal life. Fenin, develops love for books and starts reading more and more and spends his most of the time with books, he even considers them his real world and twitches to live in world of fairy-tales.

Hoping that Fenin may turn customary and do mundane things the way he used to do, the psychiatrist injects in his veins certain drugs—Believing that these drugs might rebuild him, but in contrary they turn fatal and take Fenin's mortal life to immortality with wailing mother, shattered father and lonesome friends.

The book is written in third person narrative, the character namely Fenin has been given the main role to perform. Fenin is the protagonist of the story who falls in love with Arabela. Apart from that there are few more characters in the story, they are Fenin's friends, his family and his friend's family members. The scene has been created at one place only that is USA and most of the events take place there.

The book over all is a well attempt as a beginner and I opine that the author will be counted among the good writers in the coming years.

The fault I found in the book was that the book is based on imagination than reality the author should have at least visited the place before bringing it unto his novel. The reader who has not visited the place may not feel this but the one who has visited such place may call it utterly a fallacy on writer part. And I opine the writer must take these things into consideration while compiling the upcoming books.

Apart from that I would definitely call it a good attempt as a beginner that too when the person is a young lad of 19 years.
