She: A Mystical Being

Mehar Jahan Bushra

Research Scholar,
Dept. of English and Modern European Languages,
University of Lucknow,
Lucknow (Uttar Pradesh), India.

Yeah!

She knows something is mending
Which could have been done much earlier
But relax... finally it is.

Once broken, twice broken yet remained whole,
Known as stubborn, not reckless
Pieces reconstructing the denied idylls
Time to roar.

Then, why does she feel so chaotic for being herself...
Tired of being logical,
Tired of being fiery
She yearns for some leeway...

Could she ever be free...?
Free from the kingdom, lose a little control
Coveting for Life
Is she longing to live?

Perhaps, she has not lived
Just breathed through.
She hears the throbbing but, where lie the heartbeats?

She is rummaging into her soul.

She craves a little adventure,

Let her explore the unexplored.

Is she demanding more than she deserves?

Or does she deserve more than she demands?

Hey! You there?

Listening?

Could you unravel the mystery,

or will she always remain a mystery?

Bionote:

Mehar Jahan Bushra is an educator and a research scholar from Lucknow, a city with a great history and stories. Her area of research focuses on Postmodernism, Memory, and Trauma studies. She finds inspiration in the philosophy of Nietzsche and is deeply intrigued by his ideas about human existence and reality. Despite her love for simplicity, she finds solace in exploring the enigmatic nature of literature and expresses this fascination through her writings. And, the poems she pens are like a tapestry woven with threads of profound emotions and thoughts.
